

A Conversation About Health Disparity

Racial health inequities persist among Black, American Indian/Alaska Native, Latinx, and Asian residents across the nation and West Virginia is no exception. The infant mortality rate for black babies in our state is nearly twice as high as that for white babies. And black West Virginians are nearly twice as likely to die of Diabetes as their fellow citizens who are white. A number of factors contribute to these disparities.

Race Matters inc. invites you to learn more by taking part in a discussion on this vital issues with Dr. Jessica Smith-Kelly, D.O.

December 14th, 2022, 5 to 8 p.m.

Clingman Center for Community Engagement
218 US-219, Lewisburg, WV

Rsvp to ivycohernour@gmail.com
www.racematterswv.org

RACE MATTERS INC.